

Dear Economic Affairs Committee

I am 68 years old and we do not go through a lot of milk. I owned a day care for years and struggled with milk dating. I was not aware I could have used the milk after the expiration date. I am not sure if this is true. I did ask the guy at the grocery store he said that they tell him it will last longer but he had no idea how long. He went on to explain that is just when the grocery store has to quit selling it. He did say they just dump it down the drain. I want to know why there is no expiration date on it. Does that go for all the dairy products I am buying? I also noticed in Vancouver Wa when we visit my son how much cheaper milk is, why is that? You have me totally confused if some product will last longer and the dates don't mean a thing. He did tell me you are trying to change the rule I hope you make all products with an expiration date.

Linda Forwood

2711 Raymond

Missoula mt 59802