

Native Women's Society of the Great Plains

"Reclaiming Our Sacredness"

The Native Women's Society of the Great Plains, Reclaiming Our Sacredness, is a non profit organization, representing 25 members from tribes in a six state area of the northern Great Plains.

The Society evolved from the need for the small individual programs to have support, share promising practices and frustrations, network, obtain culturally and linguistically specific technical assistance, training, consultation and collaborate to strengthen strategies and responses to violence in their respective tribal communities.

The membership evolved from the need to share support and practices and strengthen strategies and responses to violence in their communities.

The geographical area that constitutes the service area of the Society includes tribes in southern Minnesota, Montana, Wyoming, North Dakota, South Dakota and northern Nebraska. Tribes represented in the organization include the Lower Sioux Tribes in Minnesota, Omaha, Ponca, Santee and Winnebago Tribes in Nebraska, Fort Peck, Crow and Northern Cheyenne Tribes in Montana, Arapaho and Shoshone in Wyoming, Pine Ridge, Rosebud, Cheyenne River, Standing Rock, Lower Brule, Crow Creek, and Lake Traverse in South Dakota as well as Spirit Lake, Fort Berthold, UTTC and urban Native populations of Bismarck in North Dakota.

Tribal populations are culturally and geographically isolated and have been identified as underserved populations for a variety of reasons. The typical profile of a domestic violence and/or sexual assault program in this service area is a one woman program with a small budget.

MISSION

The Native Women's Society of the Great Plains, Reclaiming Our Sacredness, is a coalition of domestic violence and/or sexual assault programs committed to the reclamation of the sacred status of women. The Society offers a vision that ends domestic and sexual violence against Native women, in all aspects – a vision of change. The Society works to support and strengthen sisterhood and local advocacy and program development efforts through culturally specific education, technical assistance training and resource implementation. Member organizations of the Native Women's Society are committed to ending all forms of violence and will actively support the mission of this organization.
